Huge Library Without a doubt, one of the biggest plus points of any MIDI keyboard controller is the quantity of sound types that can be emulated with it. The range is huge, from electric pianos, classic organs, drums, through to strings and even flutes. The quality of emulation is also very high, and that means you can be pretty confident that any sound you pick up can be played on it. Built-in Reverb & Chorus MIDI controllers that were not originally designed as drum machines will often lack reverb and chorus effects. It is incredibly hard to come up with a great sounding MIDI drum at a reasonable cost, and that means you will often be forced to pick up a separate reverb or chorus pedal. On the Korg Z1, it is much easier to add these effects than you would expect. Simply click on the Reverb/Chorus icon located to the right of the PLAY, ECHO, and LFO icons and you will be presented with a list of settings. The Reverb/Chorus can be set to Normal, Wet, or Dampen, and you can even set it to use up to four different delay lines. On the Z1, you will find a tiny icon for a Stereo/Mono Switch. Use it to switch between stereo and mono, and the effect will be emulated on all instruments. One to One One of the great things about using a MIDI keyboard controller is that you can map the keyboard to any controller or computer, so that you can make it do almost anything. On the Korg Z1, the MIDI out will accept any MIDI controller, like an iKlips or MIDI music instrument, so that you can play any instrument via MIDI controllers or computers. On the Z1, the software has been designed so that it will work as a MIDI music instrument, so you can plug in an iKlips controller into it, and use it as a traditional music instrument. Sequencer & Editor Just like any other software like a Music sequencer or an Editor, the Z1 has a powerful feature called the Sequencer. This is simply a timeline and a track, which you can add any number of measures to. The Main track can be split into up to 32 parts, and any of these can be assigned to any instrument. Once you have all the instruments prepared, you can get playing right away. The Sequencer has a great way of handling 77a5ca646e canadian security camera wireless IP camera 5 best reasons to have a home security camera A few years ago, you'd have to pay a lot of money to have a motion or security camera installed in your home. But if you have a smart TV or phone, you can make use of the apps and software that are available to make your own high-tech surveillance solution for a fraction of the cost. The best of them, of course, is the convenience, but if you want to get something less mobile and more custom, you can get all of that with a home security camera.

1. Easy set up

Setting up a home security camera is probably the easiest thing you'll do with a smart device. Most smart TV apps offer visual controls, so you can just click through several screens and follow the on-screen instructions. For other smart devices, the process is similar. All you need is to set up your Wi-Fi and then pair your security camera with it. If you're using an Amazon Echo, simply say "Alexa, ask camera to pair." Or if you're using a Google Home, you can just say
